

Vitrake

VIT-rayk / Blast Horn Pokémon

BUG

DRAGON

Single stage

0.8 m / 18.5 kg

FIELD OBSERVATION 01

The two liquids in its horns are harmless apart. When danger approaches, it mixes them inside its shell and fires a scorching burst from the dragon-shaped mouth.

FIELD OBSERVATION 02

Most foes flee at the sight of its dragon-faced shell. Even with empty horns, it stands its ground and hisses as loudly as it can.

HABITAT

Forest floor and rocky streambanks.

The horns are living transparent armor. A warning hiss often saves their contents for another day.

FIELD NOTES / FROM REAL BEHAVIOR TO AN ORIGINAL CREATURE

A warning worth heeding

Vitrake lifts the front of its shell before it fires. This warning display usually settles a quarrel, leaving its precious horn stores untouched. When the bluff fails, all six feet brace against the ground for a short, accurately aimed burst.

After the standoff

Proud and stubborn in a standoff, it becomes a busy, inquisitive little beetle around a trusted Trainer. After a successful warning display, it peeks out to check that everyone noticed.

THE BOMBARDIER BEETLE

The real animal carries an extraordinary defense: a hot spray expelled from glands near the tip of its abdomen. It can direct the discharge with striking precision. Storage and reaction compartments keep the system ready until it is needed.

WHAT VITRAKE ADDS

The two horn reservoirs, shared mixing chamber, and dragon-shaped shell are fantasy anatomy. The chemical defense gives the dragon breath a purpose; the shell helps its small owner persuade larger creatures to keep their distance.

LIFE ON THE STREAMBANK

It searches damp leaf litter for small invertebrates and fallen berries, then rests beneath stones or fallen timber. A Vitrake returning to its shelter after a battle often has noticeably low liquid levels in its horns.

The name combines glass-like “vitr-” with drake. Its six legs brace together when it aims, while the solid shell protects the smaller insect beneath.

BASE STATS

520 TOTAL

HP		80
Attack		65
Defense		105
Sp. Atk		110
Sp. Def		85
Speed		75

Shell Armor / STANDARD

Prevents critical hits while the ability is active. Effects that ignore abilities can bypass it.

Mega Launcher / HIDDEN

Multiplies the power of pulse moves by 1.5. Here it boosts Dragon Pulse, Water Pulse, and Dark Pulse; it does not boost Acid Spray, Bug Buzz, Flamethrower, Belch, or every move that looks like a blast.

DEFENSIVE MATCHUPS

2x	Ice, Flying, Rock, Dragon, Fairy
1/2x	Water, Electric, Fighting, Ground
1/4x	Grass

Fire is neutral. Ground attacks connect. All other types deal normal damage.

SUGGESTED SET

Modest / Mega Launcher / Heavy-Duty Boots

252 HP / 252 Sp. Atk / 4 Sp. Def EVs. Dragon Pulse, Bug Buzz, Flamethrower, Acid Spray. Check the webapp for exact level-50 stats and alternative moves.

Vitrake and its learnset are original fan designs. Existing move effects are verified; competitive balance has not been playtested.
